Special Edition: The U.S. Olympic Team Trials - Women's Marathon Guide

from Joanie to Deena

20 Years of Women's Marathoning

Joan Benoit Samuelson and Deena Drossin are bookends for U.S. women's distance running success. Twenty years ago in May, Benoit, just 17 days after knee surgery, stamped her name into the history books and our hearts with her stirring victory at the inaugural U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials in Olympia, Wash. Three months later in Los Angeles, in another dominant performance, Benoit further added to her legacy by winning the gold medal at the inaugural Olympic Women's Marathon.

Trends in U.S. Women's Marathon Participation

Since Joanie's landmark achievements, women's participation in the marathon (and in distance running) has exploded. In 1980, 10.5% of marathon finishers were female whereas today the women comprise close to 40% of the U.S. marathon population which has tripled. The increase for the majority of marathon participants has been fueled by fitness rather than competitive goals. In 1980 the median time for women was 4:03:39. By 2002 the female median marathon time had slowed to 4:56:46 and in 2003 it was a slightly faster 4:48:15.

The marathon population is getting older (average age was 34 for men and 31.3 for women in 1980 compared to 40 and 35.7

respectively in 2003). But one of the largest growth segments for the event is women between the ages of 20 and 30. Of the 22% of marathon participants that are under 30, 54% are female.

Another Banner Year Predicted for U.S. Women in 2004

Twenty years later, Joan Benoit Samuelson has qualified for her sixth Olympic Marathon Trials, while Deena Drossin (now Kastor) - who broke Joanie's nearly 18-year-old U.S. marathon record at London last April - has qualified for her first OMT and like Joanie in Los Angeles, Deena is a strong contender for an Olympic marathon medal in Athens (if she qualifies in St. Louis).

Dan Browne (Portland, OR), Alan Culpepper (Lafayette, CO) and Meb Keflezighi (Mammoth Lakes, CA) ensured that the U.S. will have a full team of 3 in the Men's Olympic Marathon. (Complete results, page 23.)

U.S. Women's Olympic Marathon Trials History

Unlike the men, Olympic marathon team selection for U.S. women has always been determined at the Olympic Trials, a one-day final. The first U.S. Women's Olympic Marathon Trials was held on May 12, 1984 and hosted by Olympia, Washington. The past five Olympic Trials have produced exciting races and poignant stories from Joan Benoit's amazing victory in Olympia to the triumphant return of Margaret Groos in Pittsburgh to Janis Klecker's recovery from a fall in Houston to the shockers in Columbia with Jenny Spangler (1996) and Chris Clark (2000) to Lisa Weidenbach's (nee Larsen's) three heartbreaking fourth place finishes.

1984: Olympia, Washington, May 12

Time standard = 2:51:16

267 Qualifiers, 238 Starters, 196 Finishers

Despite knee surgery 17 days before the inaugural U.S. Women's Olympic Marathon Trials, Joan Benoit won the Trials in fittingly Olympia, Washington. The Freeport, Maine resident showed her mental toughness with a solid victory over Julie Brown and surprise third place finisher Julie Ispording. After the race, Benoit said, "I feel great right now." Eleven weeks later in Los Angeles, Benoit (now Samuelson) further etched her name in the history books by winning the first women's Olympic Marathon in 2:24:52, the Olympic record until 2000.

1988: Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, May 1

Time standard = 2:50:00

246 Qualifiers, 204 Starters, 159 Finishers

After several years of injury and health and personal problems, Margaret Groos put it all together with an impressive run through the streets of Pittsburgh. Her 2:29:50, the current Trials record, outdistanced veteran Nancy Ditz and rising star Cathy O'Brien. Groos credited her Trials training program for the victory stating, "I've been preparing every day; not missing any workouts. I was prepared mentally. I knew that I was ready. I felt very good, in control, and I knew that I could run faster if needed."

for U.S. Olympic Team - Women's Marathon

Women's Olympic Marathon

Athens, Greece, Sunday, August 22, 2004, 6pm

The point-to-point course starts at the historic site of Marathon and finishes in Athens at the marble Panathinaiko Stadium where the first modern Games were held in 1896.

2004 Olympic Marathon Qualifying Standards

for WOMEN A = 2:37:00 B = 2:42:00

1. Only athletes who finish the U.S. Olympic Team Trials in St. Louis and who have achieved the Olympic "A" or "B" qualifying standard will be eligible for selection to the 2004 U.S. Olympic Team.

2. If the Olympic Trials winner has achieved the Olympic "A" qualifying standard during the selection period, she will be nominated to the Olympic Team. Other members of the team, up to the maximum allowed will be selected from athletes, in rank order of finish at the Olympic Trials, who have met the Olympic "A" qualifying standard.

3. If the Olympic Trials winner has not achieved the Olympic "A" qualifying standard, but has achieved the Olympic "B" qualifying standard during the selection period, she will be the only marathon athlete nominated to the Olympic Team.

1992: Houston, Texas, January 26

Time standard = 2:45:00

118 Qualifiers, 89 Starters, 65 Finishers

Important events like the Olympic Trials bring out the best in athletes and this race was no exception. This Trials race, however, was particularly special for two reasons. One, at the 16 mile water station, 1988 Olympic marathoner Cathy O'Brien displayed true sportsmanship when she went back to help Janis Klecker who had accidentally fallen on the wet pavement. Klecker later passed O'Brien at 26 miles to win the race in 2:30:12, a PR. O'Brien whose hamstring tightened up, followed fourteen seconds later. Two, Texas resident Francie Larrieu Smith made her fifth U.S. Olympic team by placing third.

With $250,000 and 1996 U.S. Olympic team spots on the line, Jenny Spangler, who came to the Trials with the 61st fastest qualifying time, surprised the field and herself with a stunning victory in 2:29:54, nearly a four minute PR. With the fastest U.S. junior marathon time (2:33:52 run in 1983), Spangler showed promise, but injuries and disappointments prevented her from reaching her potential until that wonderful day in Columbia when everything came together for her. Two-time USA marathon champion, Linda Somers also ran well to finish second in 2:30:06, a PR. Anne Marie Lauck placed third (2:31:18) to earn the final U.S. Olympic marathon team berth.

1) Jenny Spangler (IL)	2:29:54	$45,000

Time standard = 2:42:00 (A); 2:50:00 (B)

210 Qualifiers, 170 Starters, 141 Finishers

In Columbia, Chris Clark outdid past Trials winners Jenny Spangler and Mark Conover by shocking everybody and herself with her impressive victory on a tough course and a warm day.

The 22nd fastest qualifier, Clark, 37, from Anchorage, Alaska, took control of race at the 20 mile mark as she overtook leader Ann Marie Lauck. The Montana State grad went unchallenged to the tape in 2:33:31, followed by Kristy Johnston in second (2:35:36) and Lauck third in 2:36:05. Clark was the only U.S. woman to qualify for the Olympics because she did not have an Olympic "A" standard (sub-2:33).

"My expectations were top 20, and a great day would be top 10. Winning I never thought about. I stayed focused on what I needed to do. I never thought I'd run this fast. The crowd was unbelievable the whole way. I'm in shock," said the pathologist and mother of two who trained on a treadmill in her house for the Trials.

Despite the 70 degree temperatures at Columbia, 16 women set personal records including Clark who improved her PR by 7:07. In addition, four women - Julie Peterson, Bev Docherty, Jane Welzel and Janice Eittle - became five-time U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials finishers.

1) Chris Clark (AK)	2:33:31	$45,000*
2) Kristy Johnston (WV)	2:35:36	$30,000

The Championships

Number of championships = 31 (including this one)

Multiple host same race = Columbia (4) and California Int'l (4), Grandma's (3), Houston (3) and New York City (3) and Twin Cities (3)

States with the most championships = California (10), Minnesota (7) and South Carolina (4)

Shared championships (men and women) = Houston 1979, Paul Masson 1980, California International 1984, Twin Cities 1986, New York City 2001 and Twin Cities 2002

The First

1974 - Judy Ikenberry, a 31-year-old housewife from Crestline, Calif., ran 2:55:18 to win the first national marathon championship at the West Valley Marathon in San Mateo, Calif. For the first time in a marathon, three women broke three hours. See story on page 18.

Fastest Ever

1983 - In Los Angeles, Julie Brown won the Avon Int'l and U.S. title in 2:26:26, still the fastest national championship time ever run (photo below left). Brown, a two-time Olympian, also was the first woman to win more than one U.S. marathon title.

Good Samaritan Award

1992 - At the U.S. Olympic Trials in Houston, Janis Klecker accidentally fell on the wet pavement at the 16 mile water station and 1988 Olympic marathoner Cathy O'Brien displayed true sportsmanship when she went back to help Klecker who later passed O'Brien at 26 miles to win the race in 2:30:12, a PR. O'Brien - whose hamstring later tightened up - followed fourteen seconds later and earned a spot on her second Olympic team.

Repeat after Me

1994 - At Grandma's Marathon, Linda Somers became the first and only woman to repeat as national marathon champion; the year before, she won the U.S. title at Cal Int'l.

Out of the Blue

1996 - At Columbia, South Carolina, with $250,000 and U.S. Olympic team spots on the line, Jenny Spangler, who came to the Trials with the 61st fastest qualifying time, surprised the field and herself with a stunning victory in 2:29:54, nearly a three minute PR.

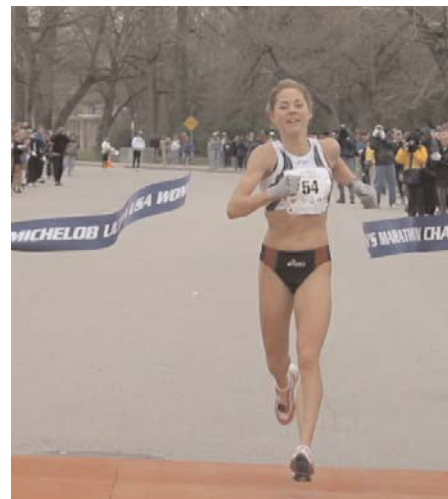

Lightning Strikes Again

2000 - Also in Columbia, Chris Clark, a pathologist from Anchorage, Alaska, joined past "surprise" Trials winners Jenny Spangler and Mark Conover with her upset victory on a tough course under sunny skies and warm temperatures. The 22nd fastest qualifier took control of race at the 20 mile mark and went unchallenged to the tape in 2:33:31, more than a 7 minute PR.

Drossin's Delightful Debut

2001 - Deena Drossin, one of America's distance stars and a 2000 U.S. Olympian, debuted at the New York City Marathon with an impressive 2:26:58 - the fastest U.S. female debut and 4th fastest American all-time. Drossin, a member of Team USA California, finished 7th overall against a top international field. See photo of top 3 Americans, page 4.

Sara Wells hopes that course familiarity will pay off with another strong finish this year.

Wells Wonderful Win

2003 - In her marathon debut, rising star Sara Wells of Edina, Minn. came to St. Louis to qualify for the 2004 Olympic Marathon Trials; she left the Gateway City as the surprise national champion. During the 25th mile, the Team USA Minnesota athlete overtook veteran Colleen De Reuck who had control of the race until the windy, cold conditions got the best of her. Wells, 24, won her first U.S. title in 2:35:37 with the hypothermia-suffering De Reuck second (2:37:41).

First USA Women's Marathon Championship

At the first USA Marathon Championship hosted by the West Valley Marathon in San Mateo, California, Judy Ikenberry, a 31-year-old housewife from Crestline, California, took over the lead after ten miles (1:04:51) and went unchallenged to the tape to win the national crown in 2:55:18. Ikenberry - who now runs a timing company (Race Central) with her husband, Dennis, pulled two other women (Marilyn Paul and Peggy Lyman) under three hours; for the first time in a marathon, three women broke three hours.

* Note that the 'best' performance above by Jenny Spangler does not conform to current USATF rules for Junior Records or Bests since Spangler turned 20 later in the same calendar year. At the time the performance was run it did comply with USATF (formerly TAC) LDR standards and procedures which defined a Junior as someone who is 19 or younger on the day of competition.

Marathon Progressions

Because of the variety of courses and the vagaries of weather conditions which affect the marathon more than any other track and field event, no "true" nor official world records existed for the distance until 2004. However, the following is a progressions list of the best performances in the various categories. The lists below concern only races over the standard marathon distance of 26 miles, 385 yards (42,195 meters) or longer.
