

USATF ELITE DEVELOPMENT CLUBS

The Elite Development Club (EDC) Program is intended to support the efforts of USA Track & Field and the USATF Club Council to develop and support nationally and internationally competitive athletes by increasing the number of year-round training environments available to U.S. athletes once they leave our school-based programs. By increasing the number of promising athletes who continue to compete in our sport following their high school and college careers, we enlarge the talent pool from which our future stars will emerge. The "Elite Development Club" designation identifies clubs that have demonstrated the commitment, resources, and record of developing athletes to the elite level. The "Elite Development Club" designation is also intended to enhance the ability of high level USATF Clubs to marshal community and corporate support for their mission of elite athlete development.

Elite Development Clubs – FAQ

When did the EDC program begin?

The EDC program was initiated in the spring of 2004 when more than a dozen USATF clubs were selected for "Elite Development Club" designation.

What is USATF looking for in a club candidate for EDC designation?

The Elite Development Club (EDC) Program is aimed at creating a comprehensive national network of high-quality, year-round, club-based training environments that serve the development needs of "open athletes" wherever they live. Clubs whose mission includes a commitment to developing highly competitive athletes and teams, have shown they possess the resources to support such athletes and teams, and have demonstrated a recent history of success in open-level USATF Regional and National Championship competition are good candidates to become USATF Elite Development Clubs.

Can there be more than one EDC in the same geographic area or population center?

Yes. Large metropolitan areas with large numbers of talented athletes can support multiple Elite Development Clubs within a relatively small geographic area. That said, USATF is also aware of the need to protect currently successful EDCs in small and medium-size population areas from a dilution of resources and athletes that can result from EDC saturation.

When can clubs apply for EDC designation?

Clubs can apply for EDC designation at any time. Applications are reviewed immediately upon being received by the USATF Club Council.

Why is there an application fee?

Clubs applying for Elite Development Club designation are required to pay a non-refundable $100 application fee for several reasons. The primary reason for the application fee is to help to offset the costs associated with administering the EDC Program. In addition, requiring an application fee helps to limit applicants to clubs that are truly serious about seeking the designation and have the resources to be an EDC.

How long is the designation valid?

EDC designations expire at the end of each 4-year Olympic quadrennium.

Do EDCs have to re-apply every four years?

Yes. Even Elite Development Clubs with stellar records of success in the most recent Olympic quadrennium are required to re-apply for designation as an EDC during the next quadrennium. Clubs that miss the application deadline for EDC renewal, or that are denied EDC designation for the next quadrennium, must pay the application fee if they wish to re-apply

Can a club have its EDC designation revoked within the current quadrennium?

Yes. USATF may revoke EDC designation for reasons that include, but are not limited to, failure to comply with USATF membership requirements, rules of competition, operating regulations, and/or violations of municipal, state, or federal laws.
